PREFACE.

THE great variety of Rupees, and the numerous differences of the values between them, seemed long since to require a published explanation for the benefit of those whose short residence at Calcutta subjects them so much to imposition, through their unavoidable ignorance of the nature of Batta, &c. The great want I once experienced of such a guide, and because no one else has thought it worth the pains to make one, has induced me to offer the following Tables to the gentlemen at or going to Bengal, who will, therefore, I persuade myself, approve of the design, whatever sentiments they may entertain of the execution, as it opens a way for some abler hand to enlarge and complete the scheme.

Upon my first arrival at Calcutta, nothing but the generous hospitality of its inhabitants, exceeded my surprise at the many inequalities of Rupees, by which I always found myself and fellow adventurers over-reached and imposed on by the surrounding crew of officious assistants in our disbursements; who, taking advantage of our unavoidable ignorance of Batta, made their disbursements in Currency, and charges in Siccas. For my own part, I humbly conceive, that in laying out of about 500 Rupees, my raganuffin cleared to himself 70 or 80 Rupees, by difference of Battas, and probably increased that just profit by collusion with the venders of the various articles I had need of: and because he had not got enough of my money by Batta, Dustoorree, that bugbear to the Europeans, helped him to a little more of it, for Buckseys; that is, a recompense for his honest services. And though I had a hint from one or two young gentlemen that some Rupees were better than others, and thought to avail myself of this intelligence when the hour came for settling accounts, I found my motion quite over-ruled, and that my insufficient information only served as a key to deeper imposition. Unused as I was to their customs, an almost conviction of their honesty took place of further scruples; for there was not a soul of all the tribe of servitors that the merry miscreant had placed about me, but would have vouched for his honest and upright dealing, nay, would have fetched those who knew nothing of the matter to have sworn it.

It may be conceived that many new comers to Calcutta experience something of this kind. The seeming intricacy of the business, and remembrance of my honest Harpy, excited my curiosity and attention; and as soon as I acquired a little insight into the nature of the many differences of Rupees, I formed a few Tables for my own use, of which, however, some few copies were made for my friends, who desired them, and by whom I was much pressed to send a correct manuscript copy to Europe for publication. Imperfect health, and insufficiency of leisure time for revising, enlarging, and correcting them, induced me to content myself with such as I had already made, and I had totally laid aside all thoughts of putting them to the press: but having great leisure time during a passage to Europe, I employed myself many hours in correcting these Tables, and forming them as they now are: I say many hours, for though a moderate skill in arithmetic is sufficient for effecting it, (which therefore on the score of knowledge claims no merit,) yet the irksome tediousness of making the calculations accurate, cost me much time and patience. I shall venture to say a few words on the purposed utility of them in general, and the explanation of each in particular.

It has been customary with many, and necessary for some, to leave every calculation of Batta to their Sircars, who as constantly take good care of themselves: but indeed I do not conceive that many of them understand the nicety of adjusting long accounts, and such as consist of numerous articles, by having any regard to the fractions, which yet, every one knows, should be attended to, to perfect the merchant's books. The merchant will, by these Tables, be eased from the trouble of making many separate calculations of Battas in his accounts, and, by bare inspection, find the value of any sum of any centage in any other centage or currency; and the junior part of the Honourable Company's servants, and others, will have no less satisfaction in being enabled, by so easy a means, of ascertaining the equivalent sums of each sort of Rupees, and thereby preventing that imposition which the greater part of them have not only been exposed to, but suffered, through an inattention, I will not say inability, to discover; and, by these Tables enabled to correct the accounts of other's Sircars, and their own servants. It were to be wished that many of them (especially the military) would rid themselves of such needless cashiers, whom prevalence of custom, and not needed service, has tacked to the already too numerous and unavoidable consumers of their income: for though I have known some Sircars who would, professedly, serve for nothing, but the pleasure of disbursing master's money, can it be supposed that no part will stick to their palms? For however Proteus-like and shifting their contrivances may be, they cannot, I conceive, live like the Cameleon, on the air; nor is it reasonable to expect their service for nothing: but they should not, I think, be compelled, as it were, to requite their service by fraud and imposition.

But I beg pardon for this digression, and observe, lastly, that the common daily disbursements, Consumah's accounts, servants' wages, payment of bills, all dues or demands will be, by these Tables, easily adjusted; in short, they will serve as a ready guide in every occurrence where the difference of money is any ways concerned. The proof of which now leads to the explanation of each Table in particular.

The first, (p. 1 and 2,) shews the equivalent sum of any kind of Rupees, for any number of Gold Mohurs or Rupees from 1 to 10,000, valuing the Gold Mohurs at 16 best Sicca Rupees, at 16 per cent. above currency. For instance, the value of 90 Gold Mohurs in those Rupees which are 13 per cent. above currency, is R. 1478: 3: 8.—Of the 11 per cent. R. 1504: 13: 10, &c. &c.

The second Table, (p. 3, 4, and 5, and continued in p. 6, 7, and 8) shews the value of any sum of 16 per cent. money, from 1 Pie to R. 50,000, in the other different centaged Rupees, and in currency: for example, the equivalent sum for a bill of R. 375 : 14 : 7, 16 per cent. money may be readily found, by addition only, in any of the other kinds of Rupees; viz. in the 13 per cent. Rupees, it comes to R. 385 : 14 : 3. In the 11 per cent. R. 392 : 13 : 7, &c. &c.

The third Table, (p. 9, 10, and 11, and continued in like manner to p. 12, 13, and 14,) shews the equivalent sums in the other kind of Rupees, for any sum of the 13 per cent. money, from 1 Pie to 50,000 Rupees.

The fourth Table, (p. 15, 16, and 17, and continued in p. 18, 19, and 20,) shews, in the same manner, the equivalent sum in the other kind of Rupees, for any sum of the 11 per cent. money, from 1 Pie to 50,000 Rupees.

The fifth Table, (p. 21, 22 and 23, and continued in p. 24, 25, and 26,) shews the same for the 10 per cent. Rupees, Annas, and Pies.

The sixth Table, (p. 27, 28, and 29, and continued in p. 30, 31, and 32,) shews what sum of the other kind of Rupees is equivalent to any sum of the 9 per cent. Rupees, &c.

The seventh Table, (p. 33, 34, and 35, and continued in p. 36, 37, and 38,) shews the same of the 8 per cent. Rupees, Annas, and Pies. And,

The eighth and last Batta Table, (p. 39, 40, and 41, and continued in p. 42, 43, and 44,) shews what sum of the different centaged Rupees is equivalent to any number of Current Rupees, Annas, and Pies, from 1 Pie to 50,000 Rupees.

Though decimals are not annexed throughout each Table, as to the Annas and Pies, there cannot be a mistake of so much as half a Pie in any one sum; for where the decimal equalled or exceeded 50, unity has been annexed to the Pies, and where under 50, no notice taken of it. It would have been as easy to have inserted the decimals throughout, but that would have increased the number of the columns: to avoid which, it will be observed, when the higher centaged Annas come to more than Annas and Pies of the lower kinds, I have made the overplus an additional unit to the Annas: for instance, 15 16 per cent. Annas are equal to R. 1 : 1 : 1,33 of the 8 per cent. or to R. 1 : 1 : 4,80 current, which are put down An. 17 : 1,33, and An. 17 : 4,80.

All possible care has been taken to make every sum correct; but it is probable some error may hereafter appear to claim the inspector's indulgence. I here subjoin the groundwork of each table, to give an idea of the accuracy with which they have been composed.

If any one be desirous of proving the correctness of any sum, the plain rule of three will serve his purpose, in this manner: multiply the sum you want reduced to some other kind by 100, increased by the centage of its own kind, and divide the product by 100, increased by the centage of that kind you would have it reduced to. For example: how many 9 per cent. Rupees must be paid for a debt of 97 16 per cent. Rupees? $\frac{97 \times 116}{109} = 103: 3: 8,03$; that is, 97 multiplied by 116, and that product divided by 109, produces 103: 3: 8,03 9 per cent. Rupees, Annas, Pies, and Decimals. And a like method will reduce all kinds of Rupees to others of any different centage; as by this second example: what number of 13 per cent. Current Rupees must be paid for a bill of 397 8 per cent. Current Rupees? $\frac{397 \times 108}{113} = 379: 6: 11,2$ 13 per cent. Rupees, Annas, Pies, and Decimals. For the names of the different centaged Rupees, and some other particulars, I beg to refer the reader to some subsequent Remarks on Bengal Money.

The Tables of Exchange, which I have added to the Batta Tables, cannot be of such daily use as the other preceding ones; but I hope the casual aid they will afford on all occasions where bills, remittances, and other transactions with Europe are concerned, will apologize for inserting them in this book: they are carefully composed, and, by inspection only, will be readily found how many Pounds, Shillings, Pence, Farthings, and Decimals of Farthings are equal to any sum of Bengal currency, from 1 Pie to 100,000 Rupees; and, vice versa, what sum of Current Rupees, Annas, Pies, and Decimals of Pies, and, by the help of the preceding Tables, what sum of any kind of Rupees, &c. is equal to any sum of English money, from 1 Farthing to £50,000 Sterling, at the different rates of exchange, (increasing by one Half-penny) from 2 Shillings to 2s. 6d. per Current Rupee.

By these Tables the buyer and seller of European commodities will be readily eased from many, otherwise, necessary calculations; and in some other cases I hope they will prove serviceable. I shall only add a few lines about the explanation of each.

The first Table (p. 45, 46. and 47) shews what sum of English money is equal to any sum of Bengal currency, from 1 Pie to 100,000 Rupees, at the rates of 2s., 2s. 0½d. and 2s. 1d. per Current Rupee.

The second Table (p. 48, 49, and 50) shows the same at the rates of 2s. 1½d., 2s. 2d. and 2s. 2½d. per Current Rupee. And,

The third Table (p. 51, 52, and 53) shews the same as the two former ones, at the rates of 2s. 3d. 2s. 3½d. and 2s. 4d. per Current Rupee.

The fourth Table (p. 54, 55, and 56) shews the same at the rates of 2s. 4½d., 2s. 5d. and 2s. 5½d. per Current Rupee. And p. 57 contains the Table of Exchange, at the rate of 2s. 6d. per Current Rupee.

The next Tables are the reverse of these.

The first of them (p. 58, 59, and 60) shews what sum of Current Rupees, &c. is equal to any sum of English money, from 1 Farthing to £50,000 Sterling, at the rates of 2s., 2s. 0½d. and 2s. 1d. per each Current Rupee.

The second Table (p. 61, 62, and 63) shews the same, at the rates of 2s. 1½d., 2s. 2d. and 2s. 2½d.

The third Table (p. 64, 65, and 66) the same, at the rates of 2s. 3d., 2s. 3½d. and 2s. 4d. per Current Rupee.

PREFACE.

The fourth Table (p. 67, 68, and 69) shews the same, at the rates of 2s. 4½ d. 2s. 5d. and 2s. 5½ d. per Current Rupee; and p. 70, contains the Table of Exchange, at the rate of 2s. 6 d. per Current Rupee.

A very little use will make it easy to find any required sum at any required rate of exchange, by having regard to the left-hand perpendicular, and upper horizontal column; and the same method will render the use of the Batta Tables easy and familiar.

The utility of the short General Interest Table (p. 71) and its necessary appendage, p. 72, will apologize for the insertion of them in this book.

Remarks on Bengal Money.

Though there are several real species of money in Bengal, gold, silver, copper, and also small shells, yet all merchants' accounts are kept in an imaginary species, called Current Rupees, Annas, and Pies, to which all the real specie must be reduced, before any sum can be regularly entered into books of accounts. The gold coin consists only of Gold Mohurs, or Rupees, halves, quarters, and eighths of them. At the rate of 2s. 3 d. exchange per Current Rupee, each Gold Mohur is valued in payments to the Honourable Company's servants at 2l. 1s. 9d. A good Gold Mohur will weigh 7 dwts. 21 grs. and is 23 carats and $\frac{1}{4}$ a grain fine; that is, one carat and $\frac{1}{4}$ a grain better than the British standard for gold coinage. Gold of such a quality is worth 4l. 1s. 6d. per oz. which is 3s. 7½ d. per oz. above the price of British standard gold; and the Gold Mohur or Rupee, worth 1l. 12s. 1d.; but they are sometimes so shamefully alloyed as not to be worth more than 3l. 13s. 6 d. per oz. that is, only 1l. 8s. 11½ d. a-piece.

The silver species of money consist of a great variety of Rupees, some coined in Bengal and some elsewhere; and of a very few halves and quarters of some of them. The difference of value between any kind of Rupee and Currency, or between one kind and another, is called Batta; that is, an agio, or different centage, which is always calculated in currency; so that, although 16 per cent. Rupees are 8 per cent. better than those which are 8 per cent. above currency, yet 100 16 per cent. Rupees are not equal to 108 8 per cent. Rupees, but to 100 8 per cent. Rupees, increased by the addition of 8 Current Rupees reduced to that centage; that is, 7 r. 6 a. 6 p. making the sum of 8 per cent. Current Rupees $107:6:6=100$ 16 per cent. Rupees; and vice versa, 100 8 per cent. Rupees, because 8 per cent. less in value than the 16 per cent. Rupees, do not equal 92 of that sort, but 100 lessened by the reduction of 8 Current Rupees, reduced to value in that centage, viz. 6 r. 14 a. 4 p. making the sum 93: 1: 8, 16 per cent. Rupees equal to 100 8 per cent. Rupees, and so of all the other kinds.

The quality of the various silver coins cannot be easily ascertained, as it not only varies in the different kinds of Rupees, but in those of the same species, according to the time of coinage. The best coined silver in Bengal that I have seen, is 11 oz. 16½ dwt. fine, and will sell for 4*d.* per oz. more than the British standard silver; and some are so much alloyed as not to exceed the standard, which is 11 oz. 2 dwt. of pure silver, and 18 dwt. of fine copper to the lb.

The kinds of Rupees in use at Calcutta are, 1st, the Sicca Rupee, which is 16 per cent. above currency, and if good, will weigh 7 dwt. 9 grs. Sicca Rupees were formerly coined every year; at which time all the old ones sell 3 per cent. and sometimes more, but as the charges of coinage did not equal that loss, in a very little time most of the old ones were re-coined. At the rate of 2*s.* 3*d.* exchange per Current Rupee, the Sicca Rupee is valued in Bengal at 2*s.* 7¼*d.* and is worth in England 2*s.* 0¼*d.* 2dly, The old Sicca, or 13 per cent. Rupees, which are such as from year to year have not been re-coined, but generally those of the last year; they at the exchange aforesaid, are valued in Bengal at 2*s.* 6½*d.* and are worth in England 2*s.* 3dly, The Sunnat, or 11 per cent. Rupees, in which the military are paid; though now, by a general order of the 24th of September, 1772, a regulation is made for paying the army in the newest coined Sicca Rupees, at the rate of exchange therein specified: the Sunnat Rupee is valued at 2*s.* 5¼*d.* and is worth (if good) 1*s.* 11½*d.* 4thly, The Bombay, Madras, or 10 per cent. Rupees, which are generally of good quality and weight: their value in Bengal is 2*s.* 5½*d.* and in England they are worth 1*s.* 11½*d.* 5thly, The Sootee, or 9 per cent. Rupees, which indeed are not very common, nor of good quality: they are valued at 2*s.* 5½*d.* and are worth 1*s.* 11*d.* each. 6thly, The Arcot, or 8 per cent. Rupees, which, excepting the new Siccas, are most common in use, and are generally understood to be meant in all kind of dealings, where it is not otherwise particularly expressed, either in buying European or Calcutta commodities: it is generally called (in round reckonings) half a crown, but is valued at 2*s.* 5*d.* and is worth, in England, 1*s.* 10½*d.* Besides these, there are a few of other kinds to be found among the Shroffs, or bankers; among the rest a base alloyed coin, called Vizaree, which in real value is 2½ per cent. under currency. 7thly, and lastly, The Current Rupee, which as before said, is only an imaginary coin, like our English pounds sterling, and is valued at 2*s.* 2½*d.* 2*s.* 3*d.* and 2*s.* 3½*d.* &c. at different periods, by the Hon. Company's Exchange; but, at the rate of 2*s.* 3*d.* valuation in Bengal, it is only worth 1*s.* 9½*d.* Sterling in England.

The above valuations of each kind of Rupee is made at the rate of 5*s.* 6*d.* per oz. and on the supposition that the silver of each species is at least 12 dwts. above the British standard. There are some few small pieces of silver coin called Annas, which should be of the same fineness, and one sixteenth part of the weight of a Rupee: these, or their doubles, are seldom met with, but the quarter and half Rupees are not quite so scarce. Of the copper coinage, a very small part comes into the hands of the Europeans, but it is generally used for paying the Hon. Company's labourers, and coined into one and two Anna pieces. At Patna, there is a quantity of copper money called Pice, of which a number from 46 to 50 is given for a Rupee; and it were to be wished that some sort of copper coinage would take place at Calcutta, for the greater convenience of change; and at the same time, an increase made in the coinage of half and quarter Rupees. The Pie is also an imaginary coin, and reckoned in currency thus; 12 current Pie 1 current Anna, and 16 current Anna equal 1 Current Rupee.

It may be necessary to observe, that it is the constant practice of Sircars, in reducing any sum of one kind of Rupees into another kind, to make the overplus Annas and Pies in currency; it is therefore necessary, after ascertaining (by the Tables) the equivalent sum of any centage for any sum of any other centage, if there be any Annas and Pies, to find their value in currency: For example, 73 Arcot, or 8 per cent. Rupees, are found equal to 67 r. 15 a. 5 p. Sicca or 16 per cent.; that is, to 67 Sicca Rupees, and 1 r. 1 a. 10 p. 6 d. current; which overplus is paid in shells, called Cowries, which are imported from the Maldives and other islands; and, according to the real or artificial plenty or scarcity of these shells, a greater or less quantity of them is given in payment for sums under, and sometimes greater than a Rupee: and very little other money is made use of by the poor people.

To make this book still more useful for those for whose use it was principally intended, some account might here be added of the weights and measures of Bengal, but that would lead me from my purpose. To conclude this tedious Preface, let it be observed, that a pound weight of good Gold Mohurs is worth 48*l.* 18*s.* and of the British coin, only 46*l.* 14*s.* 6*d.* The pound weight of good Sicca Rupees, is worth 3*l.* 6*s.* and the British silver coin 3*l.* 2*s.*; so that the British gold coin bears the proportion of more than 15 to 1 to the silver coin; the Bengal gold coin bears only the proportion of 13,3 to 1, and the Gold Mohur's weight to that of the Sicca Rupee, is in the proportion nearly of 16 to 15.

I shall now take my leave of the reader, and to his candour and indulgence submit the whole. I shall be very happy if any one finds advantage by these Tables, &c. which are done to the best of my present knowledge, and will, I hope, be productive of some more material performance from an abler hand. Let those then, that know more, and those that before knew less than what I now offer, divide the advice of the old Roman poet;

To use this Table.

1st, Multiply the principal by the number of days.

2dly, Multiply that product by the rate of interest.

3rdly, and lastly, Cut off the two right-hand figures and the remaining figures to the left, collect out of this table, which will give the true Sum required

Example.

What is the interest of Rs. 715, 8 for 127 days, at the Rate of 7 per cent per Annum.
